Josh Heytvelt, the Clarkston native and Gonzaga basketball star who wasn't drafted by an NBA club, has signed with a professional team in Turkey.

Heytvelt will play for Oyak Renault Bursa, a club in the Turkish Basketball League. His parents, Michelle and Rolin Heytvelt of Clarkston, said he will depart Spokane for Turkey on Tuesday.

Most projections before June's NBA draft had Heytvelt among the players that would be selected. But he wasn't picked.

Heytvelt was with the Washington Wizards' summer league club, but didn't get much playing time and wasn't offered a long-term contract.
