

I absolutely understand why someone would choose not to vote for Mike. Because I respect the voting process, I recognize not everyone may vote for the candidate that I'm supporting.

You might NOT be supporting Mike IF:

- You have been called a CAVER by someone else in an online discussion.
- You avoid the Kroc Center out of fear that little kids are peeing in the pool.
- You consider carrying a tape recorder in your purse on the off chance you may encounter a local elected official.
- When you hear the term “all the pretty people,” you know this doesn't include you.
- You couldn't possibly vote for any candidate with the last name Kennedy for any position at any time because you are certain that ALL Kennedys are related and known flaming liberal Democrap that are foaming at the mouth.

So yes, I could understand how someone may not feel that Mr. Kennedy is the best choice. I disagree. Our wonderful country of ours encourages this kind of process.
