

CDA Local comment re: Brannon Recount in Brand X:

" Its funny because I always thought of "the loose nut people" as overly paranoid and hypocritical. You guys come on here and work yourselves into a frenzy over what? Conspiracy theories.

Do you really see Coeur d'Alene as such a miserable place controlled by big money and crooked politicians, or do fear it could happen and want to expose the next big political controversy. I read Mary Souza's open CDA web site and see nothing but paranoia and sensationalism. I listen to so many of you sit and wonder about where you guys come up with these statements about individuals character. Wow Kennedy got mad at some one.....and here I was thinking he was a saint. Our mayor wears nice clothes, dang I thought she should run council meeting in a burlap sack. Our city is well represented and respected across the state do to the hard work of our city and those that came before them.

Until I actually see proof that there are shady dealing going on then I won't sit and accuse. Do I agree that the LCDC is a mixed bag of motives, yes but I feel that it is a necessary evil that has made the city a better place (thats my opinion) and with good oversight can continue to do great things for this city.

It's not Kennedy's job to ask for a recount its the losers prerogative. Good for Brannon for asking for a recount. Thats democracy at it finest. Winners don't ask for the recount its the losers right. I haven't heard one complaint about a recount from Kennedy and can't imagine him uttering one.

It is a sad statement about this community when the people criticizing the council make anonymous and open ended accusations about our current local government, personal attacks on their eating habits and weight, criticisms about their personal life and creating an overall negative atmosphere on boards like this.

I plan on continuing to enjoy this life and wonderful place we live in and every time a see a council person or the mayor I will continue to address them as such and thank them for their service, even if that person is brannon or anyone else. "