Seasons of Coeur d'Alene Fresh Grill & Bar
Opens Doors to Rave Reviews.

New restaurant will offer Seasonally Inspired Spirited Cuisine.

(Coeur d'Alene, ID) July 7, 2011 – Coeur d'Alene has always been known for its four distinctive seasons and now there is a restaurant that embraces those seasonal changes for their guests. Seasons of Coeur d'Alene Fresh Grill & Bar opened in time for 4th of July revelers to explore the casually sophisticated dining room, bar and patio.

“We are extremely excited to open the doors to a restaurant that offers so much for the local community and visitors,” says Don “Pepper” Smock, co-owner of the restaurant. “Our goal was to create a venue where people could enjoy great meals made from the highest quality ingredients, paired with an extensive wine and martini list in a fun and welcoming atmosphere,”

“We also wanted to put an emphasis on superior service,” adds co-owner, Pat Krug. “Our staff has been trained with a very guest-centric approach. We want raving fans and we know this starts with how our guests are treated from the moment they walk into the establishment.”

Chef Scott Miller’s culinary skills will be showcased throughout Seasons of Coeur d’Alene’s inventive assortment of time-honored American fare with a focus on seasonal specialties. Chef Miller has crafted a roster of traditional favorites like Peppered Bistro Steak, Kobe Pub Burger, Short Rib Pasta along with seasonal specials, and has infused them with the signature style that has earned him accolades and a loyal following across the region.
