

Joker offers a partial transcript of Mary's first show:

By Joker/HucksOnline (3.17.14)

Luckily everyone, I have a partial transcript from the first broadcast.

Mary: Good afternoon everyone. Welcome to the common sense express. We're looking for advertisers, volunteers to run the equipment and you. Please call in and express yourself.

Jimmy Buffet music plays quietly in the background.

15 minutes later...

Mary: Well, our phone lines are open. We're dying to hear from you.

She turns off her microphone and begins yelling at Bill, her trusty assistant. "You better do something and get some callers. What are you doing?"

Bill: I can fix this.

Bill picks up the phone and calls the show, connecting and he begins to speak: Long time listener, first time caller. Mary I am a big fan of yours. You make so much sense. I hear you're running for the state Legislature against John "Obama lover" Goedde?

Mary: That's right Bill. I am glad you mentioned it. Yes I am running for state senate. We have to stop Mr. Goedde from taking his marching orders from President Obama. We can't afford Obamacare. Yet, John has rolled over. It's shameful.

Bill: You're a patriot Mary," and hangs up.

10 minutes later. More music.

Mary: "Good job. Get Gookin on the line.

Bill: uh he's not answering.

Mary: We need callers in order for this to work! Who hired you?!

Bill calls the show again, disguising his voice as a woman:
Mary, you have so much common sense. I am voting for you. My friends all love you too.

Mary: Well, thank you. We're going to make your government accountable to me.

The phone rings. Frantically, Bill puts it through.

Mike begins to speak: Hi Mary, this Mike. I recently joined the Republican Party and I am wondering what you can do at the state level about a federal mandate. It seems as though the affordable care act is going to give health care to those who couldn't afford it.

Mary: Well, MIKE, I think you don't understand this country or freedom. Our founding fathers didn't have health insurance. You've got to pull yourself up by your boot straps.

Mike: That's true, but don't we have the responsibility to less.
(the line goes dead).

Bill: I cut that idiot off.

Mary: How dare Mike come on my show and interrupt me. Some people have no class. No respect. They don't understand the process! I wish I knew Mike's last name so I could write about him in my newsletter.

Bill: Oh, another caller. Bill disguising his voice as a teenage boy: Whoa man. This show is killer dude. I mean like Mary is out there defending the constitution. She is the coolest.

Mary: So glad you called. Are you a registered voter...
