

Craigslist post alarms community

The Moscow Police Department is investigating a tip about a bizarre posting on Craigslist.

A man from western Washington allegedly posted an ad in the “rants and raves” section of the Pullman-Moscow Craigslist Web site, saying he had followed a beautiful girl home and wanted to leave a present beneath her window.

Moscow Assistant Police Chief David Duke said the posting was not targeted at any specific woman in the Moscow-Pullman area, and there have been no reports of a present left beneath a window.

The original posting has been removed, but follow-up posts include one from a person who says they contacted the Moscow Police Department.

“I do hope you all realize that if this person is telling the truth about watching a young woman, that this is bordering obsession,” the alleged tipper posted anonymously. “We all need to watch out for each other.”

The Pullman Police Department has not received a report about the posting, Cmdr. Chris Tennant said.
